

Lake Traverse Water Quality Improvement Project

This entire peninsula is the result of erosion and excess sediment.

An aerial photograph showing a narrow river or stream flowing through a vast, green agricultural landscape. The fields are divided into long, straight rows, likely corn or soybeans. The river is dark and narrow, winding through the center of the frame. There are some trees and bushes along the riverbanks, particularly a large cluster of trees on the right side in the foreground. The overall scene is a rural, agricultural setting.

Lake Traverse is behind you and we are heading towards State Highway 27
